

AL-NASSER UNIVERSITY

The AL-Nasser University, is an academic University established in southeastward of Asia, in Sana'a, Yemen in 2007.

Previously known as Al-Nasser College of Medical Sciences, it specializes in three basic areas; name Pharmacy, community health and laboratories.

Al-Nasser University established 3 new colleges. They are the College of Humanities, the College of Engineering and Computer Science, and the College of Administrative and Financial Sciences.

It is located within three buildings, the first is the site of the University of Medical Sciences, the second is the site of the College of Humanities, and the third is the site of the College of Engineering and Computer Science with a famous institute of computer science also known as APTEC.

FACULTIES & CENTERS

- Faculty of Medical Science (pharmacy, medical laboratory techniques, nurse, nutrition, community health).
- Faculty of Business and Finance.
- Faculty of Humanities.
- Faculty of Engineering and Computer Sciences.

VALUES

1. Providing an appropriate scientific environment to prepare graduates with skilled, scientific, and practical competencies who have the ability to self- and continuous learning.
2. Developing and improving academic programs in accordance with quality.
3. Educational, research, and administrative processes.
4. Optimizing the available human and material resources, creating opportunities and financial resources to serve the educational process, and improving the infrastructure to ensure the achievement of the vision and mission of the university.

VISION & MISSION

- Local leadership, regional excellence, and keeping abreast of global scientific and research developments.
- Providing scientific and research services that contribute to providing the community with effective competencies capable of competition and creativity locally and regionally.